I'm about to start work on a mobile app (android/iOS) and the first iteration of the development will be a form of wizard that users need to go through in order to complete their registration. The wizard is meant to be adaptive to their specific needs and to make decisions based upon the information provided. Since this is a registration process, we'd need to gather information about user's mobile phone number, email address and address. By the end of this process, users should be registered and their account should be linked to their phone number. However, since our registration takes place over multiple web services and we want
