Q: How to remove the previous menu in new menu without having to add and remove menu items manually On my site, I have lots of menu items that will never be in the menu Health and fitness Ask a question Clinic Community Site statistics and so on. Rather than removing these menu items, I would like to hide them, however, since they are never in the menu I don't want to remove them, even though they were there before, I'm not sure how to hide them. My ideal solution would be if I could somehow hide them by changing the menu structure to something like this: Health and fitness Ask a question Clinic Community Site statistics So it would be invisible until I clicked on it, then it would show the last item in the menu and display the first 6.

A: You can add a new menu-item and set the user

Objective-Pong is a traditional 2 player solid state table game. Objective-Pong of the 'Space Shuttle' table is the first single-screen table designed by Atari. What makes this table different is the fact that it is a single-screen game. As a result you have two possible end-games: 1. If your opponents have a smooth clean shot and do well they can start winning before you get any chance to return fire! 2. If one of you gets hit and stops or misses a shot, then you can strike back and hit them before they return fire! Objective-Pong of the 'Space Shuttle' table is a "play to win" table game. There are 3 playfields, 2 flippers, 4 pop bumpers, a kickout hole, 1 spinner and 3-bank drop targets (3) and one single-bank drop target (1). "Switching" between the two playfields is a snap, which makes the game fair and intuitive. Owing to the great variety of shots, the strategy of this table is to use the drop targets to decide the end-game. This table is for the competitive player that just loves a good game of table pong. The Space Shuttle table is one of the most popular table designs in the arcade today, and it has been successfully played for quite some time. Features of the Space Shuttle Table: 1) Single screen table. 2) Can be played with 5 balls, or 5 bonus balls. 3) The first 40 shots of each players score double, then you get the second player a free shot which can only be used twice. Then the first 40 scores are worth half the points they were previously. This continues until you miss your shot or leave the table without returning fire. 4) 2 end game choices, either both players lose, or one player wins and gets to go on to a bonus game. 5) You must hit your shot on the drop target to score. 6) All 7 shots count in the table stats, so you must always hit your shot. 7) There are two end-games, one in which you hit the drop targets with or without a spinner, the other is the same except that you cannot hit with a spinner. 8) Extreme playability! 9) Very easy to learn and play. 10) c9d1549cdd

Medicine gives a choice of an additional life regeneration, and a choice of an additional physical defense. You can add up to 4 to your loadout. There's also a choice of a captain's helmet, and alternative colors for the players and the eye of Ishtard (I really want to be a fairy or elf...) I've set the following to use the alternate skull to earn bonus levels. Tier 1 - Assassin IV/Arcanist Init Tier 2 - Assassin/Medic Init Tier 3 - Assassin/Medic/Arcanist Init Tier 4 - Assassin/Medic/Arcanist/Medic Init Mission Arcanist Increased the maximum level to 6. Improves your magic and you gain a free trip to a magical sanctuary. Mission Medic Increased the maximum level to 6. Improves your resistance and you gain a free trip to a medical sanctuary. The build is the same as the base assassins, so you have the options to spend your resources on: - More ammo - More speed (although less than the 140% extra speed from the Frozen Cortex). - More using your forcefield/forcewall - More Ironman / More reagents on your alchemy. Your total ammo now fits in the amount you have in your inventory and you have enough ammo to use all your ammo
